FORWARDED WITH COMPLIMENTS:-

15) Under Section 6 of the Petroleum Regulation Petrol in excess of three gallons cannot be kept except under a License. The purpose of the letter under disposal is to fulfil the requirements of that Section without requiring the licensees of Kerbside Pumps to obtain a second license for storing small quantity of petrol not exceeding ten gallons. A clause may be added to the conditions of the license in form "Q" authorising the licensee to keep petrol up to five cans of two gallons each. This will in effect operate as an additional license only, No separate fee is charged.

C Ranganatha Rao Sahib
Director of Industries

CRS/AKG.9-10-28.

16) I am afraid the above view is not correct. License in Form Q is for keeping petroleum in one receptacle — and the addition of a clause as suggested will be inconsistent with the main object of the license.

17) An addl license (as suggested by the Asst Secy Pro. Br, para 11 supra) seems indispensable.

SIR,

I have the honour to state that Burmah-Shell Oil Storage & Distributing Co. of India Limited, Madras, request the grant of permits to their pump holders to keep some petrol cans (each can containing two gallons) in each of their stalls near their Kerbside Pump in Bangalore to supply petrol to customers that may require it in loose cans. All the pump holders in the State have obtained special licenses in form "Q" for possession of dangerous petroleum in bulk up to 500 gallons in the underground tank adjoining the pump. This license prohibits the supply of petrol from the tank to loose tins or drums (clause 13) and it is necessary that additional stock has to be kept if loose petrol cans have to be supplied. Under Section 6 of the Petrol Regulation, no petrol in excess of three gallons can be kept without a license. Under the circumstances, I am of opinion that the pump holders may be permitted to keep spare cans of petrol of two gallons each, not in excess of five cans at a time, without obtaining an additional license. It is probable that the Company may apply for similar permits for their Kerbside Pumps in Mysore and Champion Reef and for those that may hereafter be erected by them in the State. I therefore request you to kindly obtain the sanction of Government empowering me to issue additional permits to the pump holders for possessing petrol in cans up to ten gallons.

I have the honour to be,
Sir,
ur most obedient servant,

C Ranganatha Rao Sahib
